

Laser Hair Removal Questionnaire

How long have you been in the laser hair removal business? _____
Experience does matter

How long have you been performing laser hair removal treatments? _____

Are your technicians professionally trained for laser hair removal? [] Y [] N

This is important for your safety. Without professional training of the science behind laser hair removal, identifying proper skin types, power levels and treatments leave you, the client, at significant risk for burns or other complications.

If so, at which institute did they receive their certifications from? _____

Take a couple of minutes to research the institute that the technicians were trained at. This will give you a better idea of the length and intensity the course they took went into in order to provide quality training, opposed to an overnight course.

Are you using Laser or IPL? _____

There is a big difference between beauty grade and medical grade equipment in regards to results, treatment lengths, quantity of treatments and efficiency; this also does depend on skin pigment.

Beauty grade or Medical grade? _____

There is a big difference between beauty grade and medical grade equipment in regards to results, treatment lengths, quantity of treatments and efficiency. Medical grade equipment is the superior of Beauty grade equipment.

Who manufactures your machines? _____

It is a good practice to research the manufacturer to ensure that the equipment is built by a reputable company in order to ensure they build their machines following all safety guidelines. You want to know that the manufacturers have a good record and use the latest and safest innovation for their machines. A reputable company will always have a website that can provide you with the information that you are looking for.

Which model(s) of machine(s) do you own from the manufacturer? _____

Knowing which models of their machines will help you in your research on the manufacturer website.

What type of maintenance programs do you have designed to ensure the safety and efficiency for your laser hair removal machines? _____

Proper maintenance ensures optimal results whereas unmaintained equipment loses efficiency, leading to undesired results.

Is your business insured? _____

This is always important to know.

Remember: You always need to trust that your safety is number one, that you get the results you pay for, and know that you are in a place that goes above and beyond what is required to ensure the best results for their clients.